15. Read the following passage and answer the questions set on it :

25

As the corpse went past, the flies left the restaurant table in a cloud and rushed after it, but they came back a few minutes later.

The little crowd of mourners – all men and boys, no women – threaded their way across the market place between the piles of pomegranates and the taxis and the camels, wailing a short chant over and over again. What really appeals to the flies is that the corpses here are never put into coffins, they are merely wrapped in a piece of rag and carried on a rough wooden bier on the shoulders of four friends. When the friends get to the burying ground they hack an oblong hole a foot or two deep, dump the body in it and fling over a little of the dried-up lumpy earth, which is like broken brick. No gravestone, no name, no identifying mark of any kind. The burying ground is merely a huge waste of hummocky earth, like a derelict building-lot. After a month or two, no one can even be certain where his own relatives are buried.

When you walk through a town like this – two hundred thousand inhabitants, of whom at least twenty thousand own literally nothing except the rags they stand up in – when you see how the people live, and still more how easily they die, it is always difficult to believe that you are walking among human beings. All colonial empires are in reality founded upon that fact. The people have brown faces – besides, they are so many of them! Are they really the same flesh as yourself? Do they even have names? Are they merely a kind of undifferentiated brown stuff, about as individual as bees or coral insects? They rise out of the earth, they sweat and starve for a few years and then sink back into the nameless mounds of the graveyard and nobody notices that they are gone.

A. Answer the following in a word, a phrase or a sentence as required :

1 × 4 = 4

(i) How is the burying – ground?

(ii) The population of the town is _____.

(a) Two lakhs

(b) Twenty thousand

(c) Two thousand

(d) Two crores.

(iii) Who will carry the bier?

(iv) How many people were in rags?

(v) Why were the flies attracted to the corpses?

2

(vi) How do the friends bury the dead body?

2

(vii) What impression do we get about the town? Is it a rich place or a poor place?

The most important medium used in education today is the printed word. Knowledge is preserved in books and the first step in education is learning to read. But a blind man cannot read a book. Is he then to be denied opportunities to educate himself? No, not necessarily so. The blind can get themselves educated, not only in the sense of being able to read and write but even in the sense of training themselves for a profession. Teachers of the blind can 'read' book without the aid of the eyes. The most famous of these methods is, undoubtedly, Braille.

Braille is a system of representation of printed symbol by raised dots on a flat surface. Six dots in various combinations are used to represent letters, numbers, punctuation marks and some common words. The blind person 'reads' the book by passing his fingers over the dots. Thousands of blind people all over the world have used Braille to educate themselves. Owing to the disadvantages of Braille, the American Association for the Blind made 'talking books' or long - playing discs with recordings of readings of books. These can be played and listened to by the blind. The popularity of talking books and tape recordings is steadily increasing and governments and private agencies have come forward to support the effort to produce them and make them available to people who need them.
